INDIANAPOLIS LEADER.

Horace Morris succeeds C. F. Adams as editor of the Louisville Bulletin.

Thirteen Negro laborers have been condemned to death in the island of St. Thomas, W. I., for engaging in a labor riot.

Mr. R. B. Bagby will leave for Washington, D. C., on Tuesday evening, next.

Senator Harrison has recommended the appointment of General R. S. Foster, of this city, as successor to ex-Marshall Dudley.

It is reported that Commissioner of Pensions, Dudley, will eliminate considerable Democratic talent from his bureau in the near future.

Washington correspondents announce that Register Bruce has purchased a building site near Secretary Blaine's new house, and will shortly erect a private residence thereon.

The intensely hot weather of last week is accounted for on the ground that Conkling's cholera was away up in the nineties, and the breeze coming from the East spread it all over the West.

We are under obligations to Messrs. Isaac Burgen and C. E. Croker for copies of the "Wilberforce Graduate," a very handsomely gotten up journal containing the orations of the graduating class, and other interesting matter.

Hon. Henry S. Lane, of Crawfordsville, who was elected Governor of Indiana in 1860, and shortly thereafter promoted to the United States Senate died at his home last Saturday, aged seventy-one years. He was buried Tuesday.

The Topeka (Kan.) Tribune brings us the sad news of the death of Dr. J. W. White, of Clarksville, Tenn. Mr. White was for a time a student at Oberlin, but was an alumnus of Fisk University, Tenn. Mr. White was married three years ago at Oberlin, to Miss Jennie Scott, formerly a teacher in School

No. 17, of this city, who, with one child, is left to mourn his loss. Mr. E. H. White, editor of the Topeka Tribune, is a brother to the deceased. The bereaved family and relatives have the sympathy of a host of friends.

A. S. Barnes & Co., of New York, are the publishers of "Scarborough's First Lessons in Greek," an elementary, two-term text book for beginners in the study of Greek, by Prof. W. S. Scarborough, who occupies the chair of Latin and Greek at Wilberforce University. We have not yet seen a copy of the book, but are informed that it is an excellent rudimentary work in Greek.

George Washington, a hotel waiter, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, whose great grandfather was a second cousin to a step-sister of an old acquaintance of one General G. Washington's "most trusted body servants," came to an untimely end in that city recently. He quarreled with his head-waiter, and the latter willfully, regardless of his "noble ancestry," shot him dead through the heart.

The latest Indiana appointment, that of Colonel Dudley to be Commissioner of Pensions, is one that meets with the universal approval of every Republican in Indiana. Col. Dudley is a veteran who has doubly won his spurs by his service in the battle-field and in party councils at home. It is reported the Commissioner accepted the Commission on condition that he be allowed to control the office entirely. Rebel sympathizers will most probably take a walk out of that branch of the public service.

Things have changed considerably since the War. Before that time it was a common occurrence for a white man to buy a colored woman for the purpose of making her his mistress. A few days ago Henry Tucker, a colored man who was sold as a vagrant at Lexington, Ky., was bought by his mistress, a white woman, for the sum of $112.50.—Louisville Bulletin.

The Best Breeds of Cattle. The question is often asked, which is the best breed of cattle a farmer can keep? It is impractical to answer the question without knowing for what purpose the animals are raised and where they are to be kept. If the production of beef is the sole object of raising cattle, a farmer can not do better than devote his attention to raising Herefords, Short Horns, polled Angus, or Devon cattle. The Herefords are the best in a good state of cultivation and well supplied with barns, and the latter for portions of the country where animals are obliged to travel long distances in search of food, and to get along with little protection. The polled Angus and Devon cattle are of comparatively small size and quite active, and are accordingly adapted to the farm. The Jersey is especially adapted to the dairy, and is also hardy, and capable of enduring considerable exposure without great injury. The best dairy stock is afforded by the Holstein, Ayrshire and Jersey cattle. Holstein cows are generally preferred by farmers who produce milk for supplying towns and cities. Ayrshire cows by those who are interested in the manufacture of cheese, and Jersey cows by those who desire to make superior butter, or supply their own tables with very rich milk and cream. The Jersey is especially adapted to the wants of persons in towns, as it does well when kept in confinement, consumes a comparatively small amount of food, and continues to give milk during the greater portion of the year. Many short-horns, particularly those belonging to the Princess family, are large milkers. The Holsteins, Ayrshires and short-horns are readily fattened when they have become too old to breed or to give a large amount of milk. For working cows, there is nothing superior to the Devons, as they are strong and lively. The short-horns and Herefords mature early and on that account are preferred by farmers who desire to turn off their stock when the animals are three years old, or younger. In deciding which breed of cattle to keep, a farmer should take into consideration the purpose for which they are designed and the kind of treatment they are to receive.

"Trichinae and Trichinosis." The last issue of the London Medical Times and Gazette, just received in Washington, contains an elaborate article on the official report on "trichinae and trichinosis," prepared by the late Dr. Glazier, of the Marine Hospital service. After carefully reviewing the statements of Dr. Glazier and commenting thereon, the article concludes as follows:

"But as we have said before, no country is exempt (from trichinosis). It is, however, but fair to state that American meat has earned an ill repute greater than it deserves simply because greater attention has been directed to it. Many outbreaks in Germany referred to it (American meat) have been really caused by German-grown hams, and the only one in this country (England) was from a home-fatted animal. As regards Germany, trade jealousies have an important part to play. And even in America, have allowed themselves to make rash and unproved assertions, though some, like Professor Hensell, have honestly admitted their error. American and German hams, etc., have been equally at fault, and since so valuable a supply of food can not be cut off, and each one may protect himself by proper care in cooking it, the legislative action of the Continental Government seems to us unjustifiable, though if it drive the authorities of the United States to vigorous efforts for the rehabilitation of their credit, it may be productive of good. A number of documents bearing on the subject complete the work, which we can heartily recommend to the study of all who take an interest, commercial or scientific, in the question."

Reviews in the British medical journals are said to be usually written by experts on the particular branches to which they relate, and the article from which the above is quoted is, therefore, considered to represent the views of the medical profession in England.

* Springfield, (O.) Items. The roller skating was continued last Friday and Saturday evenings, at the Central rink, under the auspices of ladies and gentlemen of Asbury Chapel. The attendance on these evenings was much larger than on the week previous. The art of skating on rollers is one that has created quite a stir among the belles and beaux during the past winter and spring, especially among the whites, they being the only ones who could enjoy the fun, all others of darker hue being debarred on account of color, and previous condition, now that the season has closed for skating, the rink, the manager of the rink is ready willing enough to rent the house and the skates to those whose money was not good enough to be scooped in with the whites, we have no objection to any one learning what they can and at any time they choose, but we being a little selfish, like to go crazy when every one else is going crazy. But notwithstanding it is a little out of season and behind time, we would offer nothing by way of discouragement, for the money made from these entertainments is to be applied to a good purpose, that of remodeling the Asbury M. E. Church, which is now being pushed rapidly. Go in boys and spend your money, you can not contribute to a more worthy cause.

Yes, she is, and is suffering very much. The Second Baptist Sunday-school will picnic soon. Oh! how we delight to see D. A. Rudd with his plug hat on—Sam! Rudd struck—R. S. Walker and M.—E. Kate. * Cleveland, O. Items. The picnic at Rocky River last Thursday was quite a success. A large crowd, a passably good day. The funeral of Wm. Clifford, son of place last Sunday, was held at his residence on Miami street. The deceased had lived for a number of years in this city, except often during the summer season when he usually left for various places to act in the capacity of cook. Mr. Clifford leaves a wife and two children, who have the sympathy of a host of friends. He was also a much valued member of the Ezekiel Commandery, K. P., who headed by the Excelsior Brass Band, were in attendance at the funeral. About $200.00 is now in hand, realized from the jug-breaking and collections within the last four or five weeks. This shows good, hard, earnest work on part of the members and others, NON NOLLO.

* Farm and Workshop Notes. Hydraulic cements do not shrink in hardening and make an excellent mortar without any admixture of sand. Combustion of coal under boilers is the most complete with fringes or charges at intervals of from fifteen to twenty minutes. Lorin Stoddard, a farmer in Harrisville, N. Y., in 1876 procured the kernel of Centennial oats and planted it. His product seed grown from this single grain amounted to 100 bushels by measure, but 135 by weight, the grain being so plump and heavy.

Be sure that the corn you plant has a good pedigree. Pedigree in seed is of as much importance as pedigree in horses and cattle. Buy it from none but reliable seed stores, though it may cost you a few cents more a bushel; it will amount to but little in the end.

Recent experiments by Mr. Waite at Manchester, England, show that the superphosphate that prevails in favor of using castor oil to cool a hot bearing is without any lubricant. No vegetable oil is fit to use as a lubricant, and castor oil is the worst of all because the most viscous. If used it will surely set the mill on fire, as it has in other cases.

Gas lime contains some sulphides of lime, some sulphates and a little sulphate of ammonia, but not enough to give much value as a fertilizer. If used in any large quantity it would destroy vegetation. The best use to which we ever saw it applied was upon the gravel walks to prevent the growth of grass and weeds, which it did most effectually, at the station time making a very firm, dry and durable walk.

June, July and August are the best months for layering roses. If the soil dries quickly the layers take two days, as they will be kept moist. By October they will be ready to be taken from the parent plant. Cut them off within two inches from the tongue. Dig deeply with a trowel to take them up and transplant where they will remain. The following spring they should be pruned down to three or four buds. Some of them will flower in the summer.

Grubs in the head of sheep are believed to be caused by the gadfly, which deposits its eggs in the nostrils of the sheep during the summer and autumn; although they cause much pain they are not usually fatal. To prevent them, apply tar to the nose of the sheep, occasionally during July and August, or smear the feeding troughs with tar. To cure the sheep when the grubs are once hatched, blow tobacco smoke up the nostrils or syringe the nose with a decoction of tobacco.

Our best farmers are beginning to learn, and in fact, most of them have already learned, that the time spent in destroying weeds in the autumn is well spent, and that if they would save time in cultivating crops they must keep the weeds from seeding as much as possible in all parts of the farm; a little carelessness in this respect will soon cover a farm with weed seeds. A single root of milk-weed in a mowing field, if left unmolested, will spread over and take possession of a large field in a few years,
